

The Lord's Work Trust is a registered charity based in Kilmarnock, Scotland. It was established over 100 years ago by the late John Ritchie in response to giving by the Lord's people who read the early missionary reports in the Believer's Magazine in the 1890's.

The primary service of the Trust is to act as a channel for funds to assembly commended workers and related work. It also encourages God's people to have a prayerful interest in the Lord's servants and their work by providing up to date information in its free publication "Look on the Fields" and "Fortnightly News".

Today the Trust remains committed to the furtherance of the Lord's work at home and abroad by providing support and encouragement to the Lord's servants. As part of this the Trust is committed to helping the Lord's people be aware of the most advantageous ways of supporting the work of the Lord. If there is any way in which you feel we can help you, please contact us - we will count it a privilege to be of service to you.

LEGACY

Why leave a legacy? Over many years the Lord's Work Trust has been able to assist many avenues of the Lord's work, both at home and abroad, through funds bequeathed to it in the form of legacies. The Trustees are grateful to the Lord for His faithfulness, for the confidence placed in the Trust by the Lord's people and for the generous help received through legacies. Such help has been invaluable in meeting a variety of substantial needs as they arise, for example in printing Bibles, translation work, sending literature overseas and building halls in underprivileged areas of the world.

It is also worthy of note that bequests to a charity such as the Lord's Work Trust are exempt from Inheritance Tax.

What action do I take? After prayerful consideration, if you wish to make a bequest to the Trust, an example of suggested wording that meets the necessary legal requirements is given below for inclusion in your will. If you are considering a gift of property, the Trustees would appreciate being advised before the will is drawn up. In any case, if you wish to draw up a will or change an existing will by adding a codicil, it is recommended that you consult your solicitor or professional advisor.
